INTERNATIONAL OUTLOOK

Rawlinson & Hunter was founded in London in 1933 and today the UK office remains at the heart of the firm's international grouping of offices located in Europe, South East Asia, Australasia and the Caribbean.

A common and important element to the services we provide in all of the firm's offices, whether in London or elsewhere, is access to highly trained, experienced and dedicated professionals. Our offices are strategically located to serve our international clients, and our partners and staff are always close at hand to provide the highest possible standard of personalised service.

RAWLINSON & HUNTER'S APPROACH TO CLIENT SERVICE

Since 1933, Rawlinson & Hunter has been providing services to our clients internationally in our own unique way, combining the application of solution-driven technical knowledge with a personalised partner-led approach. Our reputation rests on our ability to deliver solutions tailored to our clients' specific requirements.

Our relationship with our clients, whether individuals, families or companies, is built on trust. We guide our clients personally and aim to give clear and direct advice without 'fence-sitting'. We recognise and respect the uniqueness of each client and build our services around a careful and sensitive understanding of what is needed.

Our international reach is well established but is not limited to the location of our offices. We are used to working as part of a team and have trusted professional connections in many jurisdictions with whom we work in a collegiate way in our clients' interests. This informal network enables us to operate from a position of complete independence.

INTERNATIONAL SERVICES AT RAWLINSON & HUNTER

Rawlinson & Hunter is an international grouping of professional firms and a leading provider of financial and taxation advice.

The firm has undergone regular expansion since its formation in London in 1933. In meeting the international requirements of our clients, we now operate 11 offices worldwide in 9 locations. We pride ourselves on the commitment which we make to delivering a personalised service to all of our clients, whether as accountants, advisers, executors, trustees or directors.

We believe that the international structure of Rawlinson & Hunter is unique, not just in the way that it operates but also in the extensive scope of the financial services which it provides. Our clients benefit from an organisation which encourages a close working relationship between client and partner and also one that gives immediate international access to trusted advisers of a consistently high quality across the grouping. Since its foundation in the UK, Rawlinson & Hunter has not only expanded its international presence but also the range of services which we provide to our clients, delivered with a depth of knowledge and experience of our clients' circumstances which has sometimes developed over several generations.

The United Kingdom, Australia, Bermuda, the British Virgin Islands, the Cayman Islands, Guernsey, New Zealand, Singapore and Switzerland are geographically diverse financial centres where Rawlinson & Hunter has established experienced teams providing a high level client service over a broad range of service lines. Each location has been selected for the specific financial benefits which it can provide – these are described in more detail in the individual office fact sheets contained in this publication. We also have excellent relationships with leading lawyers, bankers and investment managers, both locally and in the world's major financial centres, and we are able to work alongside them as a team when the client's interests require it.

Except for the office in Australia (where the concept doesn't apply), each office has an established licensed trust company with officers who have many years of experience. This gives clients who choose to structure their financial affairs in this way peace of mind that their wealth is in safe hands for generations to come. Other international services, derived from the firm's private client heritage, include fund administration, tax advice and compliance, accounting and corporate services together with other bespoke services, all supported, crucially, by a detailed knowledge of the local law and how it interacts with other jurisdictions.

The international partners have worked closely together over a considerable number of years and share the common view that their clients must be given the best possible service. These shared values enable the offices to collaborate swiftly, efficiently and professionally, enabling, for example, three offices to work together to facilitate a UK client establishing a Singapore resident trust, governed by Guernsey Law.

Our objective is to provide a service that is consistently above and beyond normal professional standards. To our knowledge, no other grouping of our size combines such a wide-ranging and international resource with a genuinely personal level of service. Whether you come to Rawlinson & Hunter as an individual, a trustee or an international corporation, you will benefit from the same high standards and commitment provided by all of Rawlinson & Hunter's partners and staff, wherever the office.

RAWLINSON & HUNTER

A BRIEF HISTORY OF THE INTERNATIONAL FIRM

The Chartered Accountancy firm of Rawlinson & Hunter was established in London in 1933 by Alfred Rawlinson and Robert Hunter.

After successfully navigating the challenges faced by the UK during the Second World War, including temporarily moving the Firm to rural Oxfordshire to escape The Blitz, Hunter journeyed to the US in 1945, and again in 1946 with Rawlinson, where they visited an old client living in Bermuda. This coincided with the first direct flights between the US and Bermuda and the introduction of a favourable tax system and tourist economy on the island. The visit ultimately led to the establishment of Rawlinson & Hunter's first overseas office in Bermuda in the early 1960s by future UK senior partner Bob Spooner, as the Firm sought to support its UK clients with extensive tourism and hotel interests there.

A chance encounter on an aeroplane between future UK senior partner Peter Hetherington and a Jersey accountant resulted in the foundation of the Firm's Jersey office in 1972. This was at a time when many individuals were emigrating from the UK to Jersey to escape the all-time high UK income tax rate of 136% in the late 1960s, and 98% in the early 1970s. The Firm's Jersey practice was established at a time when the island was growing rapidly as an international financial centre. The Jersey office left the network in 2025.

The Guernsey office was established in 1980 to meet the needs of specific international clients of the Firm, taking advantage of Guernsey's similarly thriving financial services industry. More than 40 years on, the Guernsey firm continues to grow.

The Cayman Islands office was established in 1973, originally to complement the services offered to clients through the Bermuda office. This British Overseas Territory steadily developed to become a leading international financial centre in the region.

Switzerland has always been the leading international financial centre in continental Europe, and during its early years Rawlinson & Hunter had served many Swiss-based corporate clients due to Robert Hunter's frequent trips to the country. To support its Swiss-based clients, the Firm therefore opened an office in Geneva in 1982, and this was eventually followed by a Zürich office in 2011. The old Geneva office left the grouping in 2019 but the Firm is now once again operating in Geneva, having opened a new office there in 2021.

By the 1980s, the British Virgin Islands had also developed into a leading international financial and tourism centre to fund its public services, and this led to Peter Hetherington and future Jersey senior partner, David Goar, establishing the Firm's office on the islands in 1988 to support clients engaged in business there.

A year earlier, in 1987, the Firm opened a representative office in Sydney, Australia to support clients with business interests Down Under. This was carried out under the umbrella of a respected Australian firm, Boroughs, a similarly private client focused firm of Chartered Accountants established in 1945. A decade and a half later, in 2003, the Firm extended this model by opening a representative office on the other side of the Ditch in Whanganui, New Zealand.

By now Singapore had established itself as the leading international financial centre in Asia, and the Firm found itself with increasing numbers of clients with business interests in the country. To support these clients, the Firm opened its first Asian office in Singapore in 2013.

UNITED KINGDOM

Rawlinson & Hunter was established in London in 1933 and the office offers a full range of services to private and corporate clients. Our reputation as experts in the field of financial advice and taxation has brought us family and corporate clients in every continent, almost entirely by personal recommendation.

The Jurisdiction

The UK is known for its ease of doing business, its outstanding financial services and for the talent of its professionals; a strong and skilled workforce. The infrastructure around doing business in the UK is long established and undergoing ongoing refinement and improvement. English law is a common law based system established from legislation created by the UK Parliament, case law, and European legislation (a combination of civil and common law). Following BREXIT, European law no longer has supremacy over UK domestic law but is being converted or preserved in domestic law. The UK is free to establish its own laws and regulations, enabling it to respond to the economy and quickly pivot should the need arise.

The UK tax code provides a preferential tax regime for those who are resident but non-UK domiciled. This 'remittance basis' of taxation enables eligible individuals, for a limited period, to pay no UK tax on foreign income and gains as long as they are not used in the UK. Corporation tax rates in the UK have maintained their competitive edge and are an incentive to encourage business establishment in the UK. Well documented case law and guidance provides some certainty around future tax exposure and includes, for example, HMRC's view on the trading vs investment status on the sale and purchase of investments – a hotly debated topic in other parts of the world.

Rawlinson & Hunter in the UK

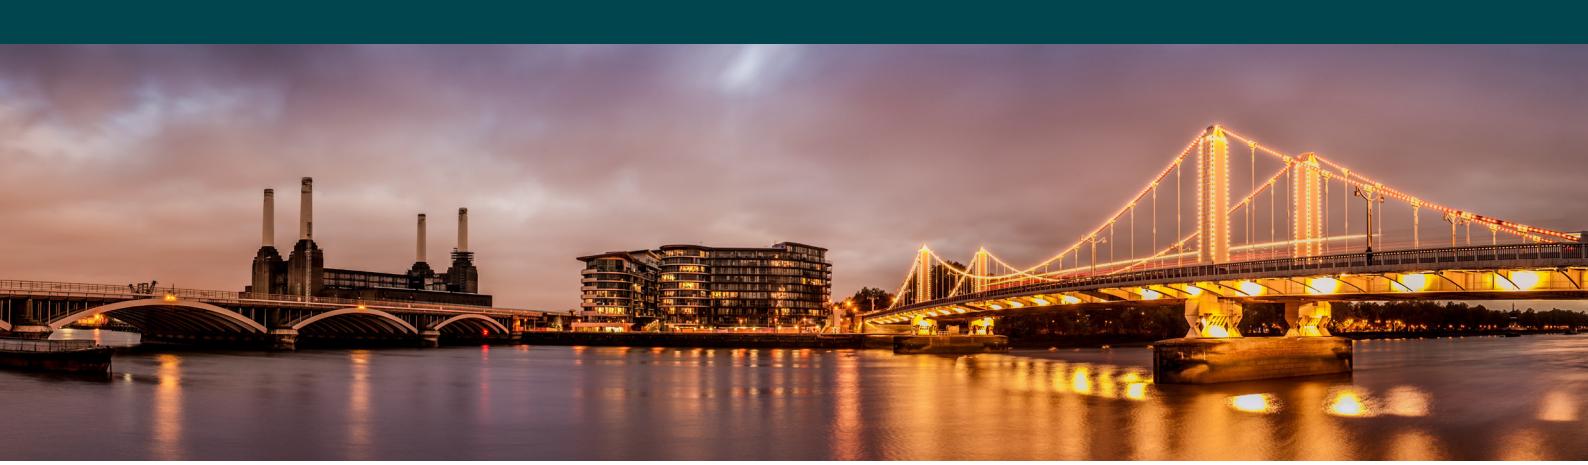

The UK office is at the centre of the international grouping, enabling us to provide a whole range of offshore wealth-holding, succession planning and tax advisory services to clients who may be confronted with both domestic and international uncertainties.

We are a team of experienced professionals working together to produce the best possible solutions for our clients. Our approach combines technical excellence with a tailored and partner-led personal service.

The Services

We are one of the leading providers of private client services in the UK. We get to know our clients and support them across the breadth of services which they come to expect from a private client adviser. As well as dealing with our clients' UK and US tax reporting obligations, we provide detailed and direct tax advice to suit our clients' requirements. Our family office support services bring us closer than ever to our clients, with partners taking seats on boards and advisory committees and demonstrating our role as the trusted adviser to many families. We support families through transition and to establish governance where beneficial.

Business tax advice has been one of the mainstays of Rawlinson & Hunter's services since the firm was first established. We have acquired a reputation for providing efficient, skilled and bespoke tax planning services to corporate (and similarly structured) clients. Our ability to service clients in this area is a fundamental element of our offering, since many of our private clients are entrepreneurs with business interests.

Our professional trustee services give clients the peace of mind that their wealth is being properly managed and that the beneficiaries will be able to enjoy it as intended for generations to come. We take clients through every stage of the process from advising on and establishing a structure to the ongoing administration and decision making into the future. We understand our clients; this enables us to continue their legacy as they intended long into the future. We also provide services as estate executors, supporting families through often complex and emotional periods.

At the cutting edge of constantly developing technology, our treasury and investment reporting specialists monitor billions of pounds of assets using sophisticated investment portfolio and accounting systems. Working closely with our international offices, we are experienced in the formation and administration of a breadth of structures covering the full range of wealth management.

In a compliance driven world, our corporate services team delivers the full range of audit, accountancy and administration services for companies in all stages of development. A full range of outsourcing services is also available.

Rawlinson & Hunter is the trading name of Rawlinson & Hunter LLP, a limited liability partnership registered in England & Wales with registered number OC43050.

Corporate Finance services include financial advisory and transaction support services for private and public companies in relation to IPOs, M&A and restructurings, together with valuation and forensic work.

The Jurisdiction

Switzerland's banking and investment expertise is world renowned and is conveniently located at the centre of Europe. Its economic and political stability, high degree of legal certainty, neutrality and respect for confidentiality make it an attractive environment for clients.

Trusts with Swiss trustees have long been recognised and widely used as a wealth-planning tool for international families. Whilst Switzerland does not have its own trust law, this may be about to change: the Swiss authorities are currently considering the introduction of a Swiss domestic trust law. If introduced, this would complement, rather than replace, the long-established practice of using Swiss trustees whilst retaining a free choice over the governing law of the trust.

Switzerland has a fully regulated trust industry, as all Swiss trustees require a federal FINMA licence to be able to provide trustee services.

Rawlinson & Hunter in Switzerland

Rawlinson & Hunter's longstanding presence in Switzerland was further strengthened in 2011 with the establishment of our Zurich office, and the Swiss firm now operates from both Zurich and Geneva.

The Swiss firm offers a full range of private client services, including trustee, accounting, corporate administration and tax services. There are three local partners, all UK qualified lawyers or chartered accountants, who are all resident in Switzerland. Reflecting Switzerland's international nature, we have English, German and French speakers across our two offices.

We are proud always to have been an independent and privately owned firm, and shall remain so. All shareholders are active partners and there are no external shareholders such as banks or private equity houses. We are one of the largest independent trust companies in Switzerland measured by assets under administration. Our ability to deal with large value and complex trusts (including PTCs), whilst remaining independent, distinguishes us from our competitors. By being fully independent operationally, we are able to choose the most suitable service providers, such as investment managers, for our clients.

As thought leaders in Switzerland, we sit on various boards and committees in the trust industry, such as STEP and the Swiss Association of Trust Companies, and we have provided the Chair of STEP in Switzerland and Liechtenstein for the last 4 years. We are actively involved in the countrywide discussions concerning the possible introduction of a Swiss trust law, and the implementation of trustee regulations. Furthermore, we speak at conferences and regularly publish articles related to the Swiss and international trust industry.

The Services

Our legal and accounting capabilities allow us to offer all of our services in an in-house, partner-led, bespoke and personal manner.

We have extensive experience in advising on the establishment and administration of trusts and private trust companies, and provide flexibility on the choice of the governing law for our trusts. We provide a full range of fiduciary services at trust level and at the level of their underlying entities. Trust Services are provided through R&H Trust Co. (Switzerland) AG, our licensed trust company.

Accounting Services for both trusts and corporate entities are offered and undertaken exclusively in Switzerland and include traditional bookkeeping services and more specialised accounting for trusts (including specific UK tax pool computations), special purpose vehicles and funds. Tax reporting for UK resident beneficiaries of non-resident trusts is complex and requires careful monitoring of income and capital gains to ascertain tax pools for attribution to trust distributions: we can provide this service swiftly and efficiently. In addition to undertaking the accounting of our client's structures in-house, we also provide accounting services to other trustees in Switzerland.

Corporate Services include incorporation, management and administration of Swiss and foreign companies (including PTCs), which may be used as special purpose vehicles and holding companies for investments and other assets.

We also have a wealth of experience in UK tax enquiry, tax advisory and investigation work and can provide advice and support in Switzerland, both to professional advisers and clients. We can file UK tax returns online directly from the Swiss offices as we are registered directly with HM Revenue & Customs.
